Colson Caster Redesigns Web Site

Sep 29, 2009 3:08 PM

Colson Caster Corp. says its new corporate Web site has an updated appearance and a more intuitive interface and programming system.

Colson says it has made improvements to the 3D modeling program for constructing application-specific caster products, created a new search feature and improved navigation and user interface. Colson's Web site \(http://www.colsoncaster.com/\) offers information on the latest products, a catalog of product literature and Colson's quarterly corporate newsletter.

“This redesigned site is a direct reflection of dozens of pieces of great input from our customers,” says Don Laux, president and general manager. “I hope they like it, because, once again, we'll be asking.”

The company encourages visitors to click on the question-mark icon on the home page \(http://www.colsoncaster.com/\) and offer comments.
